THE ART OF STORYTELLING

Oral storytelling is one of humanities oldest traditions and for time immortal we have sat around the fire sharing tales with our communities.

Today we still very much need to sit and share our stories, our hopes and our dreams and imagine through the eyes of an inspirational protagonist how we can make change, actualise our dreams and inspire one and all with hope, certainty and a world of wonder for future generations.

Oral storytelling aids with internal image making, creating from imagination and stimulating unique ideas and ways of thinking

Regular storytelling sessions helps children to focus, incrementally building concentration week by week.

Listening to someone else encourages empathy and engagement, building a collaborative process with their little (Big!) ideas and those of the tellers

When we share spoken word stories we generate exciting “in the moment material”. We develop essential spontaneity skills, necessary for social interaction, confidence development and coherent communication

“Lend me your ear and I’ll spin you a tale..”
